

HOODED SCARF

This is a really easy upcycling project with great results! All you will need is an old jumper, a scissors, a measuring tape or ruler, some tailors chalk or a colouring pencil to mark your cutting line, some pins and a needle and thread.

1. Turn your jumper inside out. Measure down 30cm along the side seam from under the sleeve and mark this point. This will be the depth of your hood, including a 1.5cm seam allowance. You can adjust if you want but it's always better to cut bigger and be able to make it smaller than to cut smaller and not be able to use it.
2. Measure up from the bottom of your jumper to this point. Use this measurement to measure up from the bottom of your jumper and mark all the way round your jumper.
3. Cut your jumper along this marked line.

4. Bring the two side seams of your jumper together, line them up and pin them together.

5. With your sides seams lined up and pinned together, lay your jumper flat and making sure the raw edges are lined up, pin the top and bottom layers together.

6. Stitch top and bottom layers together with 1.5cm seam allowance. You can stitch this line on a sewing machine or by hand using a small running stitch or a back stitch if you would like it to be more secure.

7. Take out your pins and turn your jumper the right way round.

8. Insert one corner of the line you just stitched into the other to create your hood.

9. Try it on and be warm and cosy!
